LAW SCHOOL
OF THE
CINCINNATI COLLEGE.

THIS SCHOOL was founded in May, 1833, by lawyers who had received their instruction in the Law School of Reeve & Gould, at Litchfield, or in the Dane Law School at Cambridge, and who sought to introduce the advantages of that method of the study of law into the West. It is understood to be the first Law School established west of the Alleghany Mountains. The first term began on the 7th of October, 1833.

In the year 1835 the Law School was incorporated with the Cincinnati College, a literary and academic institution founded in the year 1819; and from that time it has been conducted under the name of the "Law School of the Cincinnati College." As such it became permanently located in the College Buildings, on Walnut Street, in Cincinnati, and has been liberally endowed from the College funds for the establishment of professorships, and for the formation of a law library adequate to the purposes of the school.

SESSIONS AND VACATIONS.

THE regular Course of Study occupies a period of nineteen months ; two terms of seven months each, and a recess of five months between the terms. There are two sessions in each term : one before, and one after the Christmas holidays. The first session commences on the Thursday next after the second Tuesday* in October, and closes with the Christmas holidays. The second session commences on the 2d of January, and closes on the last Wednesday in May. The Christmas vacation includes both Christmas and New-year's days, and is the only interruption in the continuity of the two sessions.

ADMISSION.

APPLICANTS for admission may register their names and pay their tuition fees to the Dean of the Faculty, at the Library of the School, on the three days next before the commencement of the first session of each term.

Applicants are admitted to the Junior Class upon satisfactory evidence of such advancement in ordinary academic education as will fit them to profit by the studies in the Law School ; but no formal examination is required.

Applicants are admitted to the Senior Class upon a satisfactory examination in the course prescribed for the Junior Year. In addition to such examination, and as a necessary condition of entering the Senior Class, the applicant must have completed the full Course of Study for the Junior Class at this School, or must present the diploma of another Law School, or a certificate of attendance for one year at such School ; or the certificate of an attorney at law, in good standing, showing that the applicant has diligently studied law, under his direction, for one year previous.

The regular examination for admission to the Senior Class occurs on the first three days of the first session of the term.

Applicants for a degree must register their names for the Senior Class with the Dean before the first day of November, and be in daily attendance thereafter. Students may enter the Senior Class subsequently, but will not be graduated.

Special students, not candidates for a degree, will be admitted to any of the exercises of the School without examination.

COURSE OF STUDY.

THE School is divided into two classes, Junior and Senior, for each of which a special Course of Study is provided.

The daily exercises consist of lectures and recitations from standard text-books. Leading cases and collateral authorities, on the subject under consideration, are frequently referred to by the Professor ; and, at the succeeding recitation, the class will be examined upon the cases and authorities thus cited, as well as upon the subject matter of the lesson. At each exercise hypothetical cases are put to the student as a means of developing the faculty of making a practical application of legal principles. Students are encouraged to put questions freely to the instructor at all recitations.

At the close of the second session a course of study to be pursued during the Summer recess will be prescribed for the Junior Class.

Those who desire to take a special course can do so, and the tuition fees will vary in proportion to the amount of instruction given.

The regular course of instruction is as follows :

The text-books are Blackstone's Commentaries and Kent's Commentaries.

SENIOR YEAR.—Pleading and Civil Procedure, Gov. Cox; Appellate Jurisdiction and Practice in the Federal Courts,* Judge Hoody; Torts, Prof. Morrill; Real Property, Prof. King; Equity Jurisprudence, Judge Force; Mercantile Law and Contracts, Gov. Stevenson; Evidence, Gov. Cox; Constitutional Law,* Prof. King; Criminal Law, Judge Force.

The text-books are Stephen on Pleading, Bliss on Code Pleading, Bigelow on Torts, Williams on Real Property, Bispham's Principles of Equity, Parsons on Contracts, Greenleaf on Evidence, Stephen on Evidence, and Harris' Criminal Law.

Special instruction in the Constitution of the State of Ohio will be given to such of the Seniors as may desire it.

By the rules of the University of Cincinnati, students in this School may take special studies in the University, free of charge, if found, on examination, qualified to enter such classes.

POST GRADUATE COURSE.

AN advance course of study will be added whenever a class of sufficient number can be organized. It will be open to Graduates of this or other Law Schools, and junior members of the Bar, and will comprehend a course in the higher branches of the Law Merchant, Equity Jurisprudence, Admiralty Law, the Law of Corporations, Conflict of Laws, and International Law.

During the current session a course of lectures, in partial execution of the purpose stated, has been delivered.

* The text-book has not yet been selected.

DEGREES.

THE degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred by the Corporation upon all students who have been regularly admitted to the Senior Class, and have attended the full Course of Senior Lectures, and shall have satisfactorily passed the examination required for graduation. This examination is both oral and written, and is conducted by the Committee appointed by the Supreme Court of Ohio for the examination of candidates for the Bar. No student will be admitted to such examination, the number of whose unexcused absences is twenty per cent of the whole number of lectures during the Senior Year, or whose conduct shall have been otherwise exceptionable.

The degrees are conferred on the last day of the term, and graduates must attend in person to receive them.

Graduates having the necessary qualifications of age and citizenship will be admitted to the Bar of Ohio without further examination.

MOOT COURTS.

MOOT COURTS are held each week during the year, commencing with the first Thursday in November. These are presided over by the Professors in turn, and members of the Senior Class are appointed to act as counsel.

At each of the Moot Courts short but carefully prepared essays, on topics previously assigned, are required to be read.

Those Courts over which the Dean presides are devoted exclusively to Exercises in Pleading.

Attendance is compulsory upon the Seniors, but is optional with the Juniors.

Moot clubs, limited in membership, are also formed among the students for voluntary exercises in Pleading, Practice, and Argument.

LIBRARIES.

THE School has a Library of over two thousand volumes, comprising the works of the best writers on law and jurisprudence, and the more important reports. It has been selected with special reference to the wants of the School, and is devoted to its exclusive use. Large additions are annually made, a yearly appropriation of $1,500 for that purpose being provided by the Corporation. The Library is open to the students daily, from 9 o'clock, A. M., to 10 o'clock, P. M., and is under the control of the Librarian and his Assistant.

Students of the Senior Class will also have access, on very liberal terms, to the Law Library of the Cincinnati Bar. This Library, which is one of the largest and best in the country, having been selected with a view to the actual demands of practice, is particularly well adapted to the wants of advanced students about to come to the Bar. It contains all the American, English, Irish, Canadian, and Nova Scotian Reports, and a large collection of American and English Statutes, besides the standard text-books. Considerable additions are annually made to it as new works are published.

Students who are non-residents have, by the courtesy of the Directors of the Public Library of Cincinnati, the use of the Library, and are admitted to the Reading Rooms, without charge.

Very valuable advantages are thus open to those who have time for pursuing any branch of literary or scientific culture in connection with the study of the law.

PRIZES.

ESTABLISHED IN 1877.

JULIUS DEXTER, ESQ., one of the Trustees of the College, provided funds, in 1877, amounting to $250 per annum, for the following prizes, to be awarded to the Graduating Class at the close of the year:

Two prizes of seventy-five dollars each for the best two oral examinations; a prize of seventy-five dollars for the best essay, on a subject to be designated; and a prize of twenty-five dollars to be awarded at the discretion of the Committee.

The annual provision for these prizes was continued by Mr. Dexter till 1881, when the temporary arrangement made by him was assumed by the Board of Trustees of the Cincinnati College, who now make the appropriation for the purpose.

The awards are made by the Examining Committee of the Bar, appointed by the Supreme Court.

Since the establishment of these prizes the following awards have been made by the different Examining Committees:

ADVISORY.

As a general answer to numerous inquiries, the Faculty would make the following suggestions:

They earnestly advise and recommend the pursuing of academic studies as far as possible, before beginning a professional course. They believe that the time occupied in a college course of study, if diligently used, will in the end be saved by the more rapid advancement of the young lawyer in his profession. Apart, therefore, from the motives to be drawn from the general benefits of a liberal education, they give their full influence in favor of the most thorough preparation for professional study.

But, as all can not command the means and time for this, no rule is established in regard to the amount of education required for entering the Junior year, beyond what is generally understood by the elements of a good English education.

The chief advantages of attending a law school, instead of reading in a practicing lawyer's office, are found in the regular recitations in class, where the presence of numerous fellow-students stimulates the desire to be well prepared for the daily examinations ; in the regular and full development and illustration of the topic in hand by the lectures of the professors ; in the practical application of what is learned by the exercises of the moot courts ; and in the comparison of one's powers with others in a way which shows where improvement is most necessary, or gives reasonable confidence in the student's ability to cope with those he must meet in the arena of professional labor.

Very few lawyers in active practice can afford the time or labor necessary for the thorough instruction or examination of a student in the office, and experience shows that all that is commonly done is to give advice as to text-books, some general supervision of study, with occasional brief examinations, and the opportunity to the student to become familiar with the ordinary current of business.

If a part of such experience could be supplemented by the full course of lectures of the Law School, the best results would no doubt be attained ; and as the course of study in this school is framed with a view to unity and proper relation of parts, we cannot too strongly urge the advisability of attending the Junior as well as the Senior lecture terms.

The Supreme Court of Ohio, under recent legislation, is enforcing rules which must have the good effect of raising the standard of qualification for the Bar in this State ; and a similar tendency throughout the country is making the necessity for careful and systematic training more and more evident. The value of the diploma and degree granted by a reputable school is, therefore, becoming more apparent, as evidence of the sound preliminary education which is the best commendation to the public, as well as to the members of the profession.

 COMMUNICATIONS concerning the Law School should be addressed to JACOB D. COX, Dean, Cincinnati, Ohio

The Lecture Room and Library are in the Cincinnati College Building, Walnut Street, between Fourth and Fifth Streets.

LAW SCHOOL
OF THE
CINCINNATI COLLEGE.

This School was founded in May, 1833, by lawyers who had received their instruction in the Law School of Reeve & Gould, at Litchfield, or in the Dane Law School, at Cambridge, and who sought to introduce the advantages of that method of the study of law into the West. It is understood to be the first Law School established west of the Alleghany Mountains. The first term began on the 7th of October, 1833.

In the year 1835 the Law School was incorporated with the Cincinnati College, a literary and academic institution founded in the year 1819; and from that time it has been conducted under the name of the "Law School of the Cincinnati College." As such it became permanently located in the College Buildings, on Walnut Street, in Cincinnati, and has been liberally endowed from the College funds for the establishment of professorships, and for the formation of a law library adequate to the purposes of the school.

SESSIONS AND VACATIONS.

The regular Course of Study occupies a period of nineteen months: two terms of seven months each, and a recess of five months between the terms. There are two sessions in each term: one before, and one after the Christmas holidays. The first session commences on the Thursday next after the second Tuesday* in October, and closes with the Christmas holidays. The second session commences on the 2d of January and closes on the last Wednesday in May. The Christmas vacation includes both Christmas and New-year's days, and is the only interruption in the continuity of the two sessions.

ADMISSION.

APPLICANTS for admission may register their names and pay their tuition fees to the Dean of the Faculty, at the Library of the School, on the three days next before the commencement of the first session of each term.

Applicants are admitted to the Junior Class upon satisfactory evidence of such advancement in ordinary academic education as will fit them to profit by the studies in the Law School; but no formal examination is required.

Applicants are admitted to the Senior Class upon a satisfactory examination in the course prescribed for the Junior Year. In addition to such examination, and as a necessary condition of entering the Senior Class, the applicant must have completed the full Course of Study for the Junior Class at this School, or must present the diploma of another Law School, or a certificate of attendance for one year at such School, or the certificate of an attorney at law in good standing, showing that the applicant has diligently studied law, under his direction, for one year previous.

The regular examination for admission to the Senior Class occurs on the first three days of the first session of the term.

Applicants for a degree must register their names for the Senior Class with the Dean before the first day of November, and be in daily attendance thereafter. Students may enter the Senior Class subsequently, but will not be graduated.

Special students, not candidates for a degree, will be admitted to any of the exercises of the School without examination.

COURSE OF STUDY.

The School is divided into two classes, Junior and Senior, for each of which a special Course of Study is provided.

The daily exercises consist of lectures and recitations from standard text-books. Leading cases and collateral authorities, on the subject under consideration, are frequently referred to by the Professor; and, at the succeeding recitation, the class will be examined upon the cases and authorities thus cited, as well as upon the subject matter of the lesson. At each exercise, hypothetical cases are put to the student as a means of developing the faculty of making a practical application of legal principles. Students are encouraged to put questions freely to the instructor at all recitations.

At the close of the second session, a course of study to be pursued during the Summer recess will be prescribed for the Junior Class.

Those who desire to take a special course can do so, and the tuition fees will vary in proportion to the amount of instruction given.

The regular course of instruction is as follows :

The text-books are Blackstone's Commentaries and Kent's Commentaries.

SENIOR YEAR.—Pleading and Civil Procedure, Gov. Cox; Appellate Jurisdiction and Practice in Federal Courts,* Judge Hoadly; Torts, Prof. Morrill; Real Property, Prof. King; Equity Jurisprudence, Judge Force; Mercantile Law and Contracts, Gov. Stevenson; Evidence, Gov. Cox; Constitutional Law, Prof. King; Criminal Law, Judge Force.

The text-books are Stephen on Pleading, Bliss on Code Pleading, Bigelow on Torts, Williams on Real Property, Bispham's Principles of Equity, Parsons on Contracts, Greenleaf on Evidence, Stephen on Evidence, Cooley's Principles of Constitutional Law, and Harris' Criminal Law.

Special instruction in the Constitution of the State of Ohio will be given to such of the Seniors as may desire it.

By the rules of the University of Cincinnati, students in this School may take special studies in the University, free of charge, if found, on examination, qualified to enter such classes.

POST GRADUATE COURSE.

An advance course of study will be added whenever a class of sufficient number can be organized. It will be open to Graduates of this or other Law Schools, and junior members of the Bar, and will comprehend a course in the higher branches of the Law Merchant, Equity Jurisprudence, Admiralty Law, the Law of Corporations, Conflict of Laws, and International Law.

*The text-book has not yet been selected.

DEGREES.

THE degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred by the Corporation upon all students who have been regularly admitted to the Senior Class, and have attended the full Course of Senior Lectures, and shall have satisfactorily passed the examination required for graduation. This examination is both oral and written, and is conducted by the Committee appointed by the Supreme Court of Ohio for the examination of candidates for the Bar. No student will be admitted to such examination, the number of whose unexcused absences is twenty per cent. of the whole number of lectures during the Senior year, or whose conduct shall have been otherwise exceptionable.

The degrees are conferred on the last day of the term, and graduates must attend in person to receive them.

Graduates having the necessary qualifications of age and citizenship will be admitted to the Bar of Ohio without further examination.

MOOT COURTS.

MOOT COURTS are held each week during the year, commencing with the first Thursday in November. These are presided over by the Professors in turn, and members of the Senior Class are appointed to act as counsel.

At each of the Moot Courts, short, but carefully prepared, essays, on topics previously assigned, are required to be read.

Those Courts over which the Dean presides are devoted exclusively to Exercises in Pleading.

Attendance is compulsory upon the Seniors, but is optional with the Juniors.

Moot clubs, limited in membership, are also formed among the students for voluntary exercises in Pleading, Practice, and Argument.

LIBRARIES.

THE School has a Library of nearly three thousand volumes, comprising the works of the best writers on law and jurisprudence, and the more important reports. It has been selected with special reference to the wants of the School, and is devoted to its exclusive use. Large additions are annually made, a yearly appropriation of $1,500 for that purpose being provided by the Corporation. The Library is open to the students daily, from 9 o'clock, A. M., to 10 o'clock, P. M., and is under the control of the Librarian and his Assistant.

Students of the Senior Class will also have access, on very liberal terms, to the Law Library of the Cincinnati Bar. This Library which is one of the largest and best in the country, having been selected with a view to the actual demands of practice, is particularly well adapted to the wants of advanced students about to come to the Bar. It contains all the American, English, Irish, Canadian, and Nova Scotian Reports, and a large collection of American and English Statutes, besides the standard text-books. Considerable additions are annually made to it as new works are published.

Students who are non-residents have, by the courtesy of the Directors of the Public Library of Cincinnati, the use of the Library, and are admitted to the Reading Rooms, without charge.

Very valuable advantages are thus open to those who have time for pursuing any branch of literary or scientific culture in connection with the study of the law.

PRIZES.

ESTABLISHED IN 1877.

JULIUS DEXTER, ESQ., one of the Trustees of the College, provided funds, in 1877, amounting to $250 per annum, for prizes, to be awarded to the Graduating Class at the close of the year.

The annual provision for these prizes was continued by Mr. Dexter till 1881, when the temporary arrangement made by him was assumed by the Board of Trustees of the Cincinnati College, who now make the appropriation for the purpose.

The awards are made by the Examining Committee of the Bar, appointed by the Supreme Court.

A prize of seventy-five dollars is awarded for the best oral examination; a prize of seventy-five dollars for the best essay, on a subject to be designated; a prize of fifty dollars for the second best oral examination, and a prize of fifty dollars for the best performance in a public forensic discussion.

ADVISORY.

As a general answer to numerous inquiries, the Faculty would make the following suggestion :

They earnestly advise and recommend the pursuing of academic studies as far as possible, before beginning a professional course. They believe that the time occupied in a college course of study, if diligently used, will in the end be saved by the more rapid advancement of the young lawyer in his profession. Apart, therefore, from the motives to be drawn from the general benefits of a liberal education, they give their full influence in favor of the most thorough preparation for professional study.

But, as all can not command the means and time for this, no rule is established in regard to the amount of education required for entering the Junior year, beyond what is generally understood by the elements of a good English education.

The chief advantages of attending a law school, instead of reading in a practicing lawyer's office, are found in the regular recitations in class, where the presence of numerous fellow-students stimulates the desire to be well prepared for the daily examinations; in the regular and full development and illustration of the topic in hand by the lectures of the professors; in the practical application of what is learned by the exercises of the moot courts; and in the comparison of one's powers with others in a way which shows where improvement is most necessary, or gives reasonable confidence in the student's ability to cope with those he must meet in the arena of professional labor.

Very few lawyers in active practice can afford the time or labor necessary for the thorough instruction or examination of a student in the office, and experience shows that all that is commonly done is to give advice as to text-books, some general supervision of study, with occasional brief examinations, and the opportunity to the student to become familiar with the ordinary current of business.

If a part of such experience could be supplemented by the full course of lectures of the Law School, the best results would no doubt be attained ; and as the course of study in this School is framed with a view to unity and proper relation of parts, we can not too strongly urge the advisability of attending the Junior as well as the Senior lecture terms.

The Supreme Court of Ohio, under recent legislation, is enforcing rules which must have the good effect of raising the standard of qualification for the Bar in this State ; and a similar tendency throughout the country is making the necessity for careful and systematic training more and more evident. The value of the diploma and degree granted by a reputable school is, therefore, becoming more apparent, as evidence of the sound preliminary education, which is the best commendation to the public, as well as to the members of the profession.

ALL COMMUNICATIONS concerning the Law School should be addressed to JACOB D. COX, Dean, College Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Lecture Room and Library are in the Cincinnati College Building, Walnut Street, between Fourth and Fifth Streets.

Students of the Senior Class will also have access, on very liberal terms, to the Law Library of the Cincinnati Bar. This Library, which is one of the largest and best in the country, having been selected with a view to the actual demands of practice, is particularly well adapted to the wants of advanced students about to come to the Bar. It contains all the American, English, Irish, Canadian, and Nova Scotian Reports, and a large collection of American and English Statutes, besides the standard text-books. Considerable additions are annually made to it as new works are published.

Students who are non-residents have, by the courtesy of the Directors of the Public Library of Cincinnati, the use of the Library, and are admitted to the Reading Rooms, without charge.

Very valuable advantages are thus open to those who have time for pursuing any branch of literary or scientific culture in connection with the study of the law.

PRIZES.

ESTABLISHED IN 1877.

JULIUS DEXTER, ESQ., one of the Trustees of the College, provided funds, in 1877, amounting to $250 per annum, for prizes to be awarded to the Graduating Class at the close of the year.

The annual provision for these prizes was continued by Mr. Dexter till 1881, when the temporary arrangement made by him was assumed by the Board of Trustees of the Cincinnati College, who now make the appropriation for the purpose.

The awards are made by the Examining Committee of the Bar appointed by the Supreme Court.

ADVISORY.

As a general answer to numerous inquiries, the Faculty would make the following suggestions :

They earnestly advise and recommend the pursuing of academic studies as far as possible, before beginning a professional course.

They believe that the time occupied in a college course of study, if diligently used, will in the end be saved by the more rapid advancement of the young lawyer in his profession. Apart, therefore, from the motives to be drawn from the general benefits of a liberal education, they give their full influence in favor of the most thorough preparation for professional study.

But, as all can not command the means and time for this, no rule is established in regard to the amount of education required for entering the Junior year, beyond what is generally understood by the elements of a good English education.

The chief advantages of attending a law school, instead of reading in a practicing lawyer's office, are found in the regular recitations in class, where the presence of numerous fellow-students stimulates the desire to be well prepared for the daily examinations; in the regular and full development and illustration of the topic in hand by the lectures of the professors; in the practical application of what is learned by the exercises of the moot courts; and in the comparison of one's powers with others in a way which shows where improvement is most necessary, or gives reasonable confidence in the student's ability to cope with those he must meet in the arena of professional labor.

Very few lawyers in active practice can afford the time or labor necessary for the thorough instruction or examination of a student in the office, and experience shows that all that is commonly done is to give advice as to text-books, some general supervision of study, with occasional brief examinations, and the opportunity to the student to become familiar with the ordinary current of business.

If a part of such experience could be supplemented by the full course of lectures of the Law School, the best results would no doubt be attained; and as the course of study in this School is framed with a view to unity and proper relation of parts, we cannot too strongly urge the advisability of attending the Junior as well as the Senior lecture terms.

The Supreme Court of Ohio, under recent legislation is enforcing rules which must have the good effect of raising the standard of qualification for the Bar in this State; and a similar tendency throughout the country is making the necessity for careful and systematic training more and more evident. The value of the diploma and degree granted by a reputable school is, therefore, becoming more apparent, as evidence of the sound preliminary education, which is the best commendation to the public as well as to the members of the profession.

 COMMUNICATIONS concerning the Law School should be addressed to JACOB D. COX, Dean, College Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Lecture Room and Library are in the Cincinnati College Building, Walnut street, between Fourth and Fifth streets.

LAW SCHOOL

OF THE

CINCINNATI COLLEGE.

This School was founded in May, 1833, by lawyers who had received their instruction in the Law School of Reeve & Gould, at Litchfield, or in the Dane Law School, at Cambridge, and who sought to introduce the advantages of that method of the study of law into the West. It is understood to be the first Law School established west of the Alleghany Mountains. The first term began on the 7th of October, 1833.

In the year 1835 the Law School was incorporated with the Cincinnati College, a literary and academic institution founded in the year 1819; and from that time it has been conducted under the name of the "Law School of the Cincinnati College." As such it became permanently located in the College Buildings, on Walnut Street, in Cincinnati, and has been liberally endowed from the College funds for the establishment of professorships, and for the formation of a law library adequate to the purposes of the School.

SESSIONS AND VACATIONS.

The regular Course of Study occupies a period of nineteen months: two terms of seven months each, and a recess of five months between the terms. There are two sessions in each term: one before, and one after the Christmas holidays. The first session commences on the Thursday next after the second Tuesday in October, and closes with the Christmas holidays. The second session commences on the 2d of January, and closes on the last Wednesday in May. The Christmas vacation includes both Christmas and New Year's days, and is the only interruption in the continuity of the two sessions.

ADMISSION.

Applicants for admission may register their names and pay their tuition fees to the Dean of the Faculty, at the Library of the School, on the three days next before the commencement of the first session of each term.

Applicants are admitted to the Junior Class upon satisfactory evidence of such advancement in ordinary academic education as will fit them to profit by the studies in the Law School; but no formal examination is required.

Applicants are admitted to the Senior Class upon a satisfactory examination in the course prescribed for the Junior Year. In addition to such examination, and as a necessary condition of entering the Senior Class, the applicant must have completed the full Course of Study for the Junior Class at this School, or must present the diploma of another Law School, or a certificate of attendance for one year at such School, or the certificate of an attorney at law in good standing showing that the applicant has diligently studied law under his direction for one year previous.

The regular examination for admission to the Senior Class occurs on the first three days of the first session of the term.

Applicants for a degree must register their names for the Senior Class with the Dean before the first day of November, and be in daily attendance thereafter. Students may enter the Senior Class subsequently, but will not be graduated.

Special students, not candidates for a degree, will be admitted to any of the exercises of the School without examination.

COURSE OF STUDY.

The School is divided into two classes, Junior and Senior, for each of which a special Course of Study is provided.

The daily exercises consist of lectures and recitations from standard text-books. Leading cases and collateral authorities, on the subject under consideration, are frequently referred to by the Professor; and, at the succeeding recitation, the class will be examined upon the cases and authorities thus cited, as well as upon the subject-matter of the lesson. At each exercise, hypothetical cases are put to the student as a means of developing the faculty of making a practical application of legal principles. Students are encouraged to put questions freely to the instructor at all recitations.

At the close of the second session, a course of study to be pursued during the summer recess will be prescribed for the Junior Class.

Those who desire to take a special course can do so, and the tuition fees will vary in proportion to the amount of instruction given.

The regular course of instruction is as follows:

The text-books are Blackstone's Commentaries, Kent's Commentaries, Anson on Contracts, and Bliss on Code Pleading.

SENIOR YEAR.—Pleading and Civil Procedure, Gov. Cox; Torts, Prof. Morrill; Real Property, Prof. King; Equity Jurisprudence, Judge Force; Mercantile Law and Contracts, Gov. Stevenson; Evidence, Gov. Cox; Constitutional Law, Prof. King; Criminal Law, Judge Force.

The text-books are Stephen on Pleading, Bliss on Code Pleading, Bigelow on Torts, Williams on Real Property, Bispham's Principles of Equity, Parsons on Contracts, Greenleaf on Evidence, Stephen on Evidence, Cooley's Principles of Constitutional Law, and Harris' Criminal Law.

Special instruction in the Constitution of the State of Ohio will be given to such of the Seniors as may desire it.

By the rules of the University of Cincinnati, students in this School may take special studies in the University, free of charge, if found, on examination, qualified to enter such classes.

POST-GRADUATE COURSE.

An advance course of study will be added whenever a class of sufficient number can be organized. It will be open to Graduates of this or other Law Schools, and Junior Members of the Bar, and will comprehend a course in the higher branches of the Law Merchant, Equity Jurisprudence, Admiralty Law, the Law of Corporations, Conflict of Laws, and International Law.

DEGREES.

The degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred by the Corporation upon all students who have been regularly admitted to the Senior Class, have attended the full course of Senior Lectures, and shall have satisfactorily passed the examination required for graduation. This examination is both oral and written, and is conducted by the Committee appointed by the Supreme Court of Ohio for the examination of candidates for the Bar. No student will be admitted to such examination, the number of whose unexcused absences is twenty per cent. of the whole number of lectures during the Senior year, or whose conduct shall have been otherwise exceptionable.

The degrees are conferred on the last day of the term, and graduates must attend in person to receive them.

Graduates having the necessary qualifications of age and citizenship will be admitted to the Bar of Ohio without further examination.

MOOT COURTS.

Moot Courts are held each week during the year, commencing with the first Thursday in November. These are presided over by the Professors in turn, and members of the Senior Class are appointed to act as counsel.

At each of the Moot Courts, short but carefully prepared essays, on topics previously assigned, are required to be read.

Those Courts over which the Dean presides are devoted exclusively to Exercises in Pleading.

Attendance is compulsory upon the Seniors, but is optional with the Juniors.

Moot clubs, limited in membership, are also formed among the students for voluntary exercises in Pleading, Practice, and Argument.

LIBRARY.

The School has a Library of nearly four thousand volumes, comprising the works of the best writers on law and jurisprudence, and the more important reports. It has been selected with special reference to the wants of the School, and is devoted to its exclusive use. Large additions are annually made, a yearly appropriation of $1,500 for that purpose being provided by the Corporation. The Library is open to the students daily, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 10 o'clock P. M., and is under the control of the Librarian and his Assistant.

Students who are non-residents have, by the courtesy of the Directors of the Public Library of Cincinnati, the use of the Library, and are admitted to the Reading Rooms without charge.

Very valuable advantages are thus open to those who have time for pursuing any branch of literary or scientific culture in connection with the study of the Law.

The Supreme Court of Ohio, under recent legislation, is enforcing rules which must have the good effect of raising the standard of qualification for the Bar in this State; and a similar tendency throughout the country is making the necessity for careful and systematic training more and more evident. The value of the diploma and degree granted by a reputable school is, therefore, becoming more apparent, as evidence of the sound preliminary education, which is the best commendation to the public as well as to the members of the profession.

 Communications concerning the Law School should be addressed to JACOB D. COX, Dean, College Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Lecture-room and Library are in the Cincinnati College Building, Walnut Street, between Fourth and Fifth Streets.

LAW SCHOOL

OF THE

CINCINNATI COLLEGE.

This school was founded in May, 1833, by lawyers who had received their instruction in the Law School of Reeve & Gould, at Litchfield, or in the Dane Law School, at Cambridge, and who sought to introduce the advantages of that method of the study of law into the West. It is understood to be the first Law School established west of the Allegheny Mountains. The first term began on the 7th of October, 1833.

In the year 1835 the Law School was incorporated with the Cincinnati College, a literary and academic institution founded in the year 1819; and from that time it has been conducted under the name of the "Law School of the Cincinnati College." As such it became permanently located in the College Buildings, on Walnut Street, in Cincinnati, and has been liberally endowed from the College funds for the establishment of professorships, and for the formation of a law library adequate to the purposes of the School.

SESSIONS AND VACATIONS.

The regular Course of Study occupies a period of nineteen months: two terms of seven months each, and a recess of five months between the terms. There are two sessions in each term: one before, and one after the Christmas holidays. The first session commences on the Thursday next after the second Tuesday in October, and closes with the Christmas holidays. The second session commences on the 2d of January, and closes on the last Wednesday in May. The Christmas vacation includes both Christmas and New Year's days, and is the only interruption in the continuity of the two sessions.

ADMISSION.

Applicants for admission may register their names and pay their tuition fees to the Dean of the Faculty, at the Library of the School, on the three days next before the commencement of the first session of each term.

Applicants are admitted to the Junior Class upon satisfactory evidence of such advancement in ordinary academic education as will fit them to profit by the studies in the Law School; but no formal examination is required.

Applicants are admitted to the Senior Class upon a satisfactory examination in the course prescribed for the Junior Year. In addition to such examination, and as a necessary condition of entering the Senior Class, the applicant must have completed the full Course of Study for the Junior Class at this School, or must present the diploma of another Law School, or a certificate of attendance for one year at such School, or the certificate of an attorney at law in good standing, showing that the applicant has diligently studied law under his direction for one year previous.

The regular examination for admission to the Senior Class occurs on the first three days of the first session of the term.

Applicants for a degree must register their names for the Senior Class with the Dean before the first day of November, and be in daily attendance thereafter. Students may enter the Senior Class subsequently, but will not be graduated.

Special students, not candidates for a degree, will be admitted to any of the exercises of the School without examination.

COURSE OF STUDY.

The School is divided into two classes, Junior and Senior, for each of which a special Course of Study is provided.

The daily exercises consist of lectures and recitations from standard text-books. Leading cases and collateral authorities, on the subject under consideration, are frequently referred to by the Professor; and, at the succeeding recitation, the class will be examined upon the cases and authorities thus cited, as well as upon the subject-matter of the lesson. At each exercise, hypothetical cases are put to the student as a means of developing the faculty of making a practical application of legal principles. Students are encouraged to put questions freely to the instructor at all recitations.

At the close of the second session, a course of study to be pursued during the summer recess will be prescribed for the Junior Class.

Those who desire to take a special course can do so, and the tuition fees will vary in proportion to the amount of instruction given.

The regular course of instruction is as follows :

The text-books are Blackstone's Commentaries, Kent's Commentaries, Anson on Contracts, and Bliss on Code Pleading.

SENIOR YEAR.—Pleading and Civil Procedure, Gov. Cox; Torts, Prof. Morrill; Real Property, Prof. King; Equity Jurisprudence, Judge Force; Mercantile Law and Contracts, Judge Sage; Evidence, Gov. Cox; Constitutional Law, Prof. King; Criminal Law, Judge Force.

The text-books are Stephen on Pleading, Bliss on Code Pleading, Bigelow on Torts, Williams on Real Property, Bispham's Principles of Equity, Parsons on Contracts, Greenleaf on Evidence, Stephen on Evidence, Cooley's Principles of Constitutional Law, and Harris' Criminal Law.

Special instruction in the Constitution of the State of Ohio will be given to such of the Seniors as may desire it.

DEGREES.

The Degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred by the Corporation upon all students who have been regularly admitted to the Senior Class, have attended the full course of Senior Lectures, and shall have satisfactorily passed the examination required for graduation. This examination is both oral and written, and is conducted by the Committee appointed by the Supreme Court of Ohio for the examination of candidates for the Bar. No student will be admitted to such examination the number of whose unexcused absences is twenty per cent of the whole number of lectures during the Senior year, or whose conduct shall have been otherwise exceptionable.

The degrees are conferred on the last day of the term, and graduates must attend in person to receive them.

Graduates having the necessary qualifications of age and citizenship will be admitted to the Bar of Ohio without further examination.

MOOT COURTS.

Moot Courts are held each week during the year, commencing with the first Thursday in November. These are presided over by the Professors in turn, and members of the Senior Class are appointed to act as counsel.

At each of the Moot Courts, short but carefully prepared essays, on topics previously assigned, are required to be read.

Those Courts over which the Dean presides are devoted exclusively to Exercises in Pleading.

Attendance is compulsory upon the Seniors, but is optional with the Juniors.

Moot clubs, limited in membership, are also formed among the students for voluntary exercises in Pleading, Practice, and Argument.

LIBRARY.

The School has a Library of nearly four thousand volumes, comprising the works of the best writers on law and jurisprudence, and the more important reports. It has been selected with special reference to the wants of the School, and is devoted to its exclusive use. Large additions are annually made, a yearly appropriation of $1,500 for that purpose being provided by the Corporation. The Library is open to the students daily from 9 o'clock A. M. to 10 o'clock P. M., and is under the control of the Librarian and his Assistant.

Students who are non-residents have, by the courtesy of the Directors of the Public Library of Cincinnati, the use of the Library, and are admitted to the Reading Rooms without charge.*

Very valuable advantages are thus open to those who have time for pursuing any branch of literary or scientific culture in connection with the study of the Law.

PRIZES.

ESTABLISHED IN 1877.

JULIUS DEXTER, ESQ., one of the Trustees of the College, provided funds, in 1877, amounting to $250 per annum, for prizes to be awarded to the Graduating Class at the close of the year.

The annual provision for these prizes was continued by Mr. Dexter till 1881, when the temporary arrangement made by him was assumed by the Board of Trustees of the Cincinnati College, who now make the appropriation for the purpose.

The awards to the Senior Class are made by the Examining Committee of the Bar appointed by the Supreme Court.

ADVISORY.

As a general answer to numerous inquiries, the Faculty would make the following suggestions :

They earnestly advise and recommend the pursuing of academic studies as far as possible, before beginning a professional course.

They believe that the time occupied in a college course of study, if diligently used, will in the end be saved by the more rapid advancement of the young lawyer in his profession. Apart, therefore, from the motives to be drawn from the general benefits of a liberal education, they give their full influence in favor of the most thorough preparation for professional study.

But, as all can not command the means and time for this, no rule is established in regard to the amount of education required for entering the Junior year, beyond what is generally understood by the elements of a good English education.

The chief advantages of attending a law school, instead of reading in a practicing lawyer's office, are found in the regular recitations in class, where the presence of numerous fellow-students stimulates the desire to be well prepared for the daily examinations; in the regular and full development and illustration of the topic in hand by the lectures of the professors; in the practical application of what is learned by the exercises of the moot courts; and in the comparison of one's powers with others in a way which shows where improvement is most necessary, or gives reasonable confidence in the student's ability to cope with those he must meet in the arena of professional labor.

Very few lawyers in active practice can afford the time or labor necessary for the thorough instruction or examination of a student in the office, and experience shows that all that is commonly done is to give advice as to text-books, some general supervision of study, with occasional brief examinations, and the opportunity to the student to become familiar with the ordinary current of business.

If a part of such experience could be supplemented by the full course of lectures of the Law School, the best results would no doubt be attained; and as the course of study in this school is framed with a view to unity and proper relation of parts, we can not too strongly urge the advisability of attending the Junior as well as the Senior lecture terms.

The Supreme Court of Ohio, under recent legislation, is enforcing rules which must have the good effect of raising the standard of qualification for the Bar in this State; and a similar tendency throughout the country is making the necessity for careful and systematic training more and more evident. The value of the diploma and degree granted by a reputable school is, therefore, becoming more apparent, as evidence of the sound preliminary education, which is the best commendation to the public as well as to the members of the profession.

 Communications concerning the Law School should be addressed to JACOB D. COX, Dean, College Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Lecture-room and Library are in the Cincinnati College Building, Walnut Street, between Fourth and Fifth Streets.
